Overview

- Kingston Arts is the Arts and Culture Department of the City of Kingston located on the Traditional Lands of the Bunurong as part of the Kulin Nations. Each year, Kingston Arts holds a month-long visual arts program to celebrate NAIDOC Week: 2-9 July 2017.

- Kingston Arts invites Indigenous and/or Torres Strait Islander artists to submit artwork proposals (still and/or video images) for outdoor projections in response to the NAIDOC17 theme: Our Languages Matter.

  Our Languages Matter aims to emphasise and celebrate the unique and essential role that Indigenous languages play in cultural identity, linking people to their land and water and in the transmission of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander history, spirituality and rites, through story and song.

- Up to three artists will be selected and have their artworks projected during the NAIDOC17 period 2 - 9 July and up until 9 August 2017, which will be shown to an audience of thousands of commuters passing along the Nepean Highway every evening during peak hour.

About the projection spaces

Kingston Arts is home to three outdoor projection spaces:

The Clocktower

The Clocktower utilises a much-loved, historical feature of the Kingston City Hall to showcase contemporary media-based artworks. Presented on the northern side of the Clocktower, the projections are in full-view of outbound city traffic along the Nepean Highway and from surrounding business districts.

Suitable for:

- Still vertical images and/or text files
- Multiple still images played in sequence

The Bridge

The Bridge converts a disused, third-story walk bridge, located at the Kingston City Hall into a dedicated space for projection art. The space gives artists the opportunity to present highly visible three-channel rear projections to passing commuters along the Nepean Highway.

Suitable for:

- Three-channel moving image video and/or animation

Please note: artists create only 1 x video file, which is automatically split between three projectors.
